Dillon, Hughes and I had our usual weekly meeting this morning.

I telephoned Doc Matthews at The Hague to tell him Cleveland is coming up. I found Doc was leaving tomorrow for a week in London, but asked him to call Beyen and explain the importance of the Dutch Government acting favorably on yesterday's communiqué so it would be approved at the Dutch Cabinet meeting Monday in time for a final accord to be reached by all parties before the French Parliament reconvenes next Tuesday.

Afterwards Blair Clark came to see me.

We left tonight at 7:50 for Abano, in Italy.
